

COMMISSIONERS OF TOWNSHIP HEAR BUILDING CODE

Adoption Date Has Been Set For May 21st By Board

REGULATES BUILDING

21-Page Code Will Regulate Construction in All Phases

EDGELY, May 2—Meeting in a fast moving session last night in the Edgely firehouse, the Bristol Township commissioners adopted a hard-hitting, exacting building code for use in the Township. Tentative adoption date was set at May 21 after the complete, 21-page code has been fully advertised.

The culmination of three months work on the part of the commissioners, solicitors and interested parties the abridged building code leaves little to be desired as far as health and safety factors are concerned in building, maintaining, moving, renovating, repairing or demolishing a dwelling, garage or business place in the future in Bristol Township.

Covering buildings of all types, from footings to cesspools, the building code plays especially heavily on those specifications felt necessary for fire prevention and retardation.

The new code also creates the post of a building official, who will be appointed by the township commissioners to serve for a term of

Cancel Plans for Play Here, "Rip Van Winkle"

"Rip Van Winkle," the children's theatre play which was to be presented this Saturday, has been cancelled, according to an announcement made by Mrs. Martin Hopkins, president of the Sisterhood of the Bristol Jewish Center.

"For the past five years the Jewish Center has promoted living theatre for children in the Bristol area as a community project, and in the past year have found it increasingly hard to cover expenses needed in providing this service to our children," Mrs. Hopkins states. "Living theatre has never been available at such a low price, and this only because the Sisterhood guaranteed the expense and considered it a non-profit venture. Most theatre groups charge from $5 cents to $1.50 a seat. When we were allowed to sell tickets in all borough and township schools we were assured of full houses, but when this privilege was taken away we had to use all the excess funds that had accumulated to guarantee the last play presented in January."

"We are reluctant to put an end to this wonderful entertainment—and are anxious to know whether or not the parents in the Bristol area want us to continue. Perhaps if there is enough public opinion in favor, we will attempt to bring back another play in September or October. A card or letter to the Sisterhood will be appreciated."

Mrs. Samuel Gratz, Mrs. Herman Silber, Mrs. Julius Sobel and Mrs. Leon Plavin, who have been co-chairmen of these theatre projects in the past years, expressed regret that there will be no more. They reviewed with the years of "Snow White," with its real midwinters; "Heidi," "Robin Hood," "Pocahontas" and the others that delighted the children. All expressed the hope that support could be found to again bring this opportunity to Bristol.

MORRISVILLE ASKS IMMEDIATE ACTION

Urges Planning Commission To Prepare Plans For The Borough

MANY ARE CONCERNED

(Special to Courier)

DOYLESTOWN, May 2—The Bucks County Planning Commission heard yesterday afternoon a request from Morrisville for immediate action to prepare plans for the swift development of the borough. This expansion is the result of the huge Fairless Steel Works of the U. S. Steel Corporation, which has broken ground for its enormous mill.

Nearly all are deeply concerned over proper planning, and borough and township councilmen and supervisors have received pleas from property owners for zoning codes.

The recent community meeting in Falls township and another at Washington Crossing were turbulent, with property owners debating the issue of what land, and whose, should be set aside for homes, for factories, for stores and for farm land. Because no solution was acceptable, these meetings adjourned and zoning in these areas is now indefinitely postponed.

Yet the seriousness of the problem remains, for already near Morrisville, in Falls township, a large fabricated house concern has already planned 400 houses to be ready for occupancy by November. Consequently, nearby property owners are worried and anxious these

The Bristol Trust Co. Declares Stock Dividend

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of The Bristol Trust Company, yesterday, the capital stock was increased by a stock dividend of $150,000, from $250,000 to $400,000. This increase was thought necessary to enable the bank to keep pace with the rapid expansion of the area which it serves. The new capital will consist of 8,000 shares of the par value of $50 each, no change being made in the par value.

The present board of directors was elected for the coming year.

CRIMINAL-CONTROLLED FIRM GETS A "DEAL"

Disclose That Gov't Lending Agency Entered Into Such Contract

RFC INVESTIGATIONS

Disclosures made in the investigation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation show that in one case "political sponsorship" resulted in the government lending agency entering into a deal with a company controlled by criminals. In the following third article of a series on "The Big Fix," Pulitzer prize winner Mark Johnson unfolds the story of this deal.

By Malcolm Johnson
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 2 (INS)—"Political Sponsorship" in one case resulted in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation entering into a deal with a company dominated by criminals.

This case, highlighted by the Fulbright Senate subcommittee investigating RFC, apparently was a direct outgrowth of RFC Director Walter L. Dunham's practice of giving "special attention to matters in which the Democratic National Committee was interested."

The Fulbright subcommittee says: "Though he was a Republican member, Dunham's most frequent visitors, judging from his office records, were attorneys and others who had been introduced by

FURTHER RESPITES GRANTED 4 MEN WHO FACE DEATH

Pending the Outcome of Appeals In The Federal Courts

ADVANCED TO JULY 29

Governor's Action Marks Another in Long Series of Respites

By International News Service

HARRISBURG, May 2—Gov. John S. Fine today granted further respites for four condemned Philadelphians pending the outcome of appeals in Federal Courts.

Three of the men—David Darcy, 25, Harold Foster, 26, and Harry Zietz, 21—were sentenced to the electric chair for the holdup-slaying of a bystander outside the Feaster Inn near Bristol, Dec. 22, 1947.

Their execution was advanced from May 7 to July 29 in line with a stay ordered by the Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia last month to permit Darcy's counsel to appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court. Edward Hough, 35, was given a respite until July 29 because of an appeal pending in the U. S. District Court at Philadelphia by counsel for David Almeida, an accomplice in the January 1947, shooting

THE WAR

(By I.N.S.)

TOKYO, May 2—Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet announced at the Korean front today that the first phase of the communist spring offensive has "ended in a great victory for the United Nations."

The Eighth Army Chief, who heads all UN ground forces in Korea, made his statement during a flying visit to field corps commanders as allied patrols lashed north against battered Chinese forces above Seoul.

Van Fleet was quoted as declaring: "We have punished the communist forces severely. The enemy has failed in the first phase of his offensive and has paid a heavy price. He has the capability of hitting again as hard as before, or harder. However, I am confident the results will be the same."

The top allied field commander said the enemy's unsuccessful first-phase drive and the expected second installment—apparently aimed at pushing down Korea's middle—comprise "part of his announced plan to destroy us or force us into the sea."

Injured Soldier Arrives Home for The Week-End

Pfc. Robert T. Smith, demolition man for the 13th Combat Engineers, U. S. Army, and who was injured in an explosion while setting off a charge in Korea, visited at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith, Bristol Terrace II, over the week-end.

Pfc. Smith was returned to the United States from Tokyo Army Hospital on April 20th, was sent to Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., on April 23rd. On Saturday morning his parents; also his brother, Joseph Bellerby; and Miss Mary DeRatto, the latter of Fourth avenue, Croydon, motored to Washington to take Smith home where he remained until Monday morning.

The young soldier expects to be hospitalized for several months, and an artificial leg is to be provided for him. Smith also had lost two fingers of his right hand.

A resident of 723 Garden street died last night at 11 o'clock in Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, in the person of Mrs. Anna Boyle Toomey, wife of John Toomey.

Mrs. Toomey, who was born in Ireland, came to Bristol about 40 years ago. She was a communicant of St. Mark's R. C. Church.

Survivors, in addition to her husband, are two sisters, Mrs. Nellie Ward and Mrs. Katherine Harkins, of Bristol, and a brother, George Boyle, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Toomey, who was 64 years of age, had been blind for several years, and in ill health for the past two years.

School Directors Alarmed Over Unprecedented Increase in School Population in Area—Say $10,000,000 is Needed for School Building Purposes in Districts.

By Charles H. Boehm

Superintendent Bucks County Schools

MORRISVILLE, May 2—Special legislative assistance was sought by the representatives of the school boards of Lower Bucks County as they met in emergency session here Monday evening.

Agitated and alarmed over the unprecedented increase in school population, the otherwise quiescent school directors insisted that their legislative leaders, Senator Edward B. Watson and Representatives Wilson L. Yeakel and Marvin V. Keller intervene to prevent a complete breakdown in the school system.

All the districts in Lower Bucks County have a combined borrowing power for school building purposes of $2,900,000 to meet a building program of ten million dollars, which would meet the needs of only the current school population and would not take care of any larger enrollments arising out of 3100 homes now under construction. In addition the school authorities were notified, this week, that two builders will begin constructing 1600 homes which are scheduled to be completed by Dec. 1st. It is expected that these projects will double the current population of the districts in which they are located. These districts already have more than half of their elementary pupils on half session.

The school directors are not planning to meet the housing requirements that will arise out of the largest first grade in history which will be coming in September 1952.

Reports submitted by the school administrators show that it is known that 2,505 acres have recently been sold for housing developments and another 515 acres are under option. A survey conducted in one township showed that there was on an average more than one pupil attending school from each of the new homes recently completed. It was also shown that the assessment on the new homes produced school revenue of less than $150 a year to meet the cost of

THE BUS STRIKE

The "sick" leave strike of Neibauer Bus Co. drivers is being negotiated this morning, as a meeting was in progress shortly before noon.

The walk-out started at 4:45 yesterday morning, and regular users of the buses were left standing on street corners, awaiting transportation to their various places of employment. Bristol police, in the prowl car, informed corner groups that the buses were not operating.

A spokesman for the Neibauer firm stated this morning that six months ago drivers had asked for a 12½¢ per hour increase, effective May 1st, the company offering the drivers 5¢ an hour increase. "About midnight of April 29th the Neibauer Company received a call from the drivers, to the effect that the increase offered was not being accepted, and that the men would not report for work." Later various calls were received by the firm, to the effect that some drivers were "sick."

OTHER SCHOOL ITEMS

It is going to cost the Bristol Borough school district at least $8,000 for its athletic program during the 1951-52 school year, George Perkins reported to the school board, last evening. The figures given by Perkins were $8067 and it was intimated that these might be increased.

The board met in the high school building with President John Dougherty presiding. An analysis of the financial condition of the board was given by Lee VanGilder, treasurer, and the board members received the report with satisfaction and favorable comment.

The board authorized Anthony DiAngelo and Benjamin Watson,

"Born Yesterday" Opens At Grand Theatre Here

Famous for such laughter landmarks as "It Happened One Night," "You Can't Take It With You," "The Awful Truth," Columbia Pictures now brings to the screen a comedy achievement eminently worthy of its distinguished predecessors. The film is "Born Yesterday," which opens today at the Grand Theatre.

Judy Holliday, William Holden and Broderick Crawford are starred.

Columbia obviously made every effort to give "Born Yesterday" as rich and as riotous a production as possible, in keeping with its importance as probably the greatest success in the history of the American stage. Miss Holliday was chosen to duplicate on the screen her boisterous, boue Broadway characterization, and William Holden is at the zenith of his popularity for his outstanding performance in "Sunset Boulevard" and "Union Station." Crawford holds the Academy Award as best actor of the year for his sensational performance in "All the King's Men." George Cukor, who is credited with such outstanding Hollywood comedy hits as "Adam's Rib," "The Philadelphia Story" and "The Women," handled the direction of "Born Yesterday."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan
(Distributed by International News Service)

Do you suppose they suspected Chevalier of being a Commie sympathizer because he always wears his straw hat tipped to the left?

Our Government says 50 million Frenchmen can't be wrong, but Maurice isn't in the quota.

Last I heard he was standing at our Canadian border singing "Let Me In . . . I Hear Music."

Chevalier says he signed a left-wing paper without reading it, but a performer who has worked with agents for so many years should know better.

But it's a change from our left-wing petition signers . . . they even read them before they sign them, but they find it just as easy later to deny intent of harm.

Or they can always go back to saying "certainly I knew what it was" . . . all depending on how public opinion is moving at the moment.

We've got people who have reversed their direction so often they've got communion tickets good in either direction.

They aren't smart, but they're sure shifty.

Richardson to Welcome Civil Service Trial

Philadelphia—Assistant Police Superintendent George F. Richardson, suspended with five other policemen after the directed acquittal of Rudolph Sheeler, said today he welcomes a civil service trial. Richardson and the others were suspended by Public Safety Director Samuel H. Rosenberg when Judge James Gay Gordon, Jr., directed the acquittal of Sheeler on murder charges. Sheeler, 35, had served 12 years of a life sentence for the 1931 murder of Philadelphia Patrolman James T. Morrow. Judge Gordon asserted the man had been beaten by police and illegally convicted. "I never touched him or saw anybody touch him," Richardson asserted today. "He was treated as a gentleman in every way. I will get a trial which I have been asking for." In freeing Sheeler, Gordon unleashed a stinging blast at what he called police brutality.

VIRTUE IN SPOILS SYSTEM

One of the most unfortunate problems in this troubled nation is the tendency of so many persons of good education and high ethical standards to think of politics as "beneath" them, when the truth is that participating in politics (which is the only possible way of improving public administration in a republic) is one of the highest responsibilities of citizenship.

The fact is, of course, that the good citizens of this country have been exposed to a long siege of propaganda of the type organized by the Fabian Socialists to undermine self government and soften nations for Socialistic dictatorships.

Part of the propaganda that politics is an unworthy occupation consists of the preachment that the so-called "spoils system" is all bad—a vicious and corrupt manifestation growing out of the control of patronage by political parties. The converse of this assertion is, of course, the assumption that anything which takes the public payroll out of the control of political parties, such as civil service, "tenure" laws, restrictions on dismissals, etc., etc., is commendable and excellent.

The public at large tends to accept these oft-repeated

A SLUMBERING PEOPLE

Criticism of the socialistic trend in government, which began months ago as little more than a murmur of protest from the people, has now risen to a crescendo of fear and alarm. It looms large in the press and on the radio, and is the subject of continual and vehement platform utterances.

Rising taxes, a staggering public debt, the promotion of all sorts of controls and subsidies designed wholly for political purposes, have gone far toward inflicting a socialist government on the nation, even while the protests were mounting and fears increasing.

Except for viewing with alarm, nothing is being done to put a stop to a situation which threatens the very roots of American government. The people seem to be either reconciled to the approaching calamity, or are in favor of trying a system which has been repudiated as a failure many times in history.

Happy under a prosperity which is partly synthetic and partly the result of war preparations, many citizens refuse to look ahead to the day when they must face the results of national folly.

So long as a large segment of the population remains in that frame of mind, no leadership—regardless of how strong and capable it is—will succeed in arousing the nation. It isn't raining, so why repair the leaks in the economic roof? Of course, when the deluge comes it will be too late to act. An increasing number of citizens are frightened by the prospect of what's ahead, but the majority sleeps on, with no thought of the awakening.

THE MONITOR FOUND

Chances are that a famous name may be put to one of the long-sunken hulks off the Atlantic Coast. The Sixth Naval District headquarters at Charleston, S. C., must have some bright fellow going through the files of recent years. Anyhow the word from there is that a routine anti-submarine patrol, exercising off Cape Hatteras in 1947, found and identified the wreck of the Monitor.

The "first successful ironclad vessel" sunk in a gale while being towed down the coast after punishing the Confederate ironclad Merrimac in Hampton Roads in March 1862. A pretty good-sized ship was the Monitor: 171 feet long and 41 feet on the beam. But the heavy, flat hull almost awash, with its small round conning-tower, made her unseaworthy in a blow. The "cheesebox on a rail" had much the look of a modern submarine. Like a sub she could not and did go down. But she couldn't come up.

A Navy salvage officer, now retired, has said it is possible to raise the Monitor from the 120-foot depth. But even if that were practical in the unruly Hatteras waters we don't know that the wreck ought to be disturbed. It's too deep to be a hazard to anything that floats. It found an honorable grave after demonstrating that new techniques in warfare can and must fit into the American tradition of seamanship and courage.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Copyright, 1951
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—United Nations Ambassador Warren Austin appeared before the house appropriations committee recently with a budget and a prayer.

Committee members approved the budget to the tune of $55,000,000 for the international debating society. About all they could offer in answer to Austin's prayers were condolences. At one point in his testimony, Representative Karl Stefan, Nebraska Republican, had Austin on the hook. He let him wiggle off, however, probably because Austin had abandoned the Russians and was looking to higher authority for guidance. Austin said:

"I have in my mind a picture of the mountains filled with the chariots of the Lord, that are invisible, and I think that those chariots are all on our side, and I have great faith in the outcome."

After listening to Austin, it is mandatory that Americans pray continuously for peace. Austin made it plain that we are not going to get it through the United Nations. His views are shared by a large number of U. S. citizens. He admitted receiving 6,000 letters in one batch. Their general tenor was: "Quit talking and go home."

Stefan brought Austin back down to earth with this question: "I should not ask this, but will the Chinese reds eventually be recognized by the United Nations?"

Austin joshed Stefan for asking the question and the committee let the egg rest where the Ambassador had laid it.

Actually, I don't suppose house appropriations committee members really expected Austin to answer the question. President Truman won't and Secretary of State Dean Acheson lacks the courage to do so, even though he wants to answer in the affirmative.

Representative Dan Flood, the Pennsylvania Democrat on the committee, kept teasing Austin for an answer regarding the applications of economic sanctions against communist China. He also wanted to know what plans the United Nations had for roving off on another "police action" if the debating got bogged down again.

Austin professed great hope that something would be done, but Flood suggested he "is so close to the forest that you cannot see the trees." Austin admitted that might be the case and then Flood suggested that Austin's enthusiasm for the U. N. "has not been properly conveyed by your public-relations department to the people of the United States."

Stefan stayed the hand with the knife by asking at this point what the U. N. is doing to offset the lies and propaganda dispensed by the Russians at Lake Success. I give you Austin's answer verbatim, so as not to lose any of its flavor:

"I opened up a can that was mislabeled peaches and saw that it contained nothing but applesauce. That sounds facetious, but honestly I never saw anything that I ever said in the Security Council in answer to the big lies, that threw the Russians into so much confusion as that did. They went dusting out for a dictionary to find what applesauce was and why I should be using that expression."

Representative Cliff Cleveland, Ohio Republican, who had been stifled into silence up to this point, let go. He said:

"Mr. Chairman, I really am at a loss. I will admit that Mr. Austin's remark about the applesauce represents the opinion of a great segment of Americans concerning what is arrived at Lake Success."

Austin survived this and came back to say:

"I think we have a duty to have our young folks, in high school and other places, as well as our adults, know that we are probably facing 50 years of extraordinary strain—extraordinary strain upon our intelligence."

The U. N. has already provided us with five years of extraordinary strain on our intelligence. We've got 45 years to go. Let us pray.

AN ORIGINAL SONG

One of the features of the dinner meeting of the Bucks County Borough Association held Tuesday evening at the Penn Manor Club, when Morrisville Borough Council was the host, was an original song composed by Gene Devereaux and sung by a quartette with Devereaux doing the solo parts.

The song follows:

STEEL AWAY

By Gene Devereaux

Way down in the Delaware Valley, The Wall Street Journal said, There's a sleepy little village, that for years has been half-dead. They said that poor old Morrisville, where life had peaceful been, Woke up one day and found that, U. S. Steel had moved in.

Oh, they said that we've been sleeping; Yes, they said that we've been sleeping.

Oh, they said that we've been sleeping at the wheel.

You can tell the Wall Street Journal, all our sleeping is nocturnal, And old Morrisville knew all about this deal.

Ben Fairless made a survey, looked around the country side, He caught one glimpse of Morrisville, in a flash he did decide.

He knew we'd helped George Washington, win the revolution, And he knew if we would help him, all his troubles would be done.

So he asked us if we'd let him, Yes he asked us if we'd let him, Oh he asked us if we'd let him build his mill.

He said will you let me do it, We said Benjamin go to it, Just be sure you don't send Morrisville the bill.

So they had a ceremony, people came from miles around, Just certain ones invited, to see old Ben break ground.

The show it was a great one, all the headlines it did make, But they did not invite me, and that was their first mistake.

Oh I didn't get invited, No I didn't get invited, Oh I didn't get invited to the show.

Let me warn you Mr. Fairless, don't let U. S. Steel get careless, I'm a most important guy for you to know.

All the way from Venezuela, three thousand miles or more, Right up the Delaware River, they're gonna haul the iron ore.

They say they've found a mountain, a solid iron hill, But we have something better right here in Morrisville.

Oh we could have saved them trouble, Yes we could have saved them trouble.

Yes we could have saved them trouble every day, Iron ore from Venezuela, by comparison is paler,

And is not one-half as strong as Morrisville clay, According to the papers, five thousand they'll employ,

Unlimited opportunity for any man or boy, The work is interesting and to make it doubly sweet,

You'll get fifteen bucks each Friday, and all the steel that you can eat, Now they're taking applications, Yes they're taking applications,

Oh they're taking applications at the site, If there's any local resident, who would like to be vice-president

He can stop around and see me Tuesday night, The folks in dear old Morrisville, accustomed thru the years,

To a quiet way of living, now will have to shift their gears, We're coming to the crossroads, One leads up, one down, the hill, And we'd better take the right turn, or good-bye poor Morrisville.

Oh they're gonna build a steel mill, Yes they're gonna build a steel mill, Yes they're gonna build a steel mill down the way.

Oh not only will we let them, we will aid them and abet them, For a bigger, better Morrisville someday.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Deglamorization Effort

Washington, May 2.—Unquestionably the Truman-Acheson Administration and its supporting Joint Chiefs of Staff have been put on the defensive by the power and force of General MacArthur's remarkable speech to Congress last week. Just as unquestionably another effect of that speech has been to arouse an overwhelming popular sentiment behind him in all parts of the country.

It now remains to be seen whether these advantages can be held by the General during the tests to which he will be subjected next week, when he appears before the Senate Committee on Armed Forces and Foreign Affairs. Also, there are the charges made by Senator Nixon, of California, that a campaign of calculated disparagement already has been launched against him. For it is abundantly clear that the Truman Administration, the Pentagon and the State Department are not going to accept this popular approval of General MacArthur without vigorous protest and a real fight.

To do so would be to acquiesce in a smashing verdict against themselves. This is altogether too much to expect—particularly when they are equipped with quite effective weapons for reprisal.

In the first place, these committees are controlled by stalwart Administration Democrats. Well briefed in advance, it is anticipated that by adroit questioning these will be able to dissipate some of the glamor through which the people now view the General and reduce his present heroic stature to that of an ordinary man. The anti-MacArthurites make no secret that they will be bitterly disappointed if they do not succeed in this purpose. They count, of course, on great aid from the testimony of those high military figures who already have asserted they unanimously favored the Truman decision to dismiss. Perhaps their objective will be achieved. On the other hand, members of the MacArthur staff are confident that he not only will substantiate every statement he has made, but will emerge from the cross-examination with undiminished prestige.

As to the anti-MacArthur propaganda now breaking out all over the place, there are several things to consider. One is that the General's speech, free from bitterness and rancor as he said, nevertheless generally held a challenge to Mr. Truman who chooses to regard it as an "attack on the Government"—and one not to be taken lying down. Certainly, public approval of General MacArthur is public disapproval of Mr. Truman. It would be abnormal, indeed, if he and his friends, whose fortunes are linked with his, did not use everything they have to change that situation. Even with an incumbent as low in public esteem as Mr. Truman, the prestige of the presidency is enormous. It controls engines of publicity and propaganda more powerful than any to which an opposing individual or group can approach. Its influence is sufficient automatically to discourage some criticism and to inspire some advocacy. Always, it has a strong journalistic support.

Altogether, this is an exceedingly formidable combination for any man—even a great military figure such as General MacArthur—to take on, particularly when augmented by various hostile columnists and radio commentators with wide audiences. Some of these

Early Restraints Essential In Training a Young Child

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

I WAS struck by a recent headline in a newspaper, "Discipline Is Back In Good Standing." It was a report of the annual conference of the Child Study Association of America, held in New York City recently.

According to this report the words "frustration" and "discipline," generally taboo (except as words of warning) for the past thirty years among child development specialists, were brought back into respectability by a number of eminent speakers. For example, Dr. René A. Spitz of the New York Psychoanalytic Institute was reported to have said: "Appropriate frustration at the appropriate age not only has its place, but is a necessity. I am using here a word that is disliked, I know, because it is felt to indicate a primitive attitude that must damage the child. But whether you call it by the equally abhorrent term 'discipline' or 'restraint' or the term which is today most acceptable, 'renunciation,' the meaning is the same."

According to the newspaper report, Dr. Spitz held that weaning, toilet training and restrictions of where a child may crawl, climb or walk represent necessary frustrations and that to delay establishing such restraints at the appropriate age is to make it needlessly difficult for the child and his parents. He seemed to imply that some early restraints are essential for the child's feeling of security.

Then he emphasized parental consistency, reminding one of like emphasis by Dr. William Blatz of the University of Toronto, a few years ago. Dr. Spitz must have shocked some of the 1500 parents and child experts present.

At the same meeting, Dr. Robert Knights, Clinical Professor at Yale University School of Medicine, spoke in a similar vein. He said that children reared by the doctrines of the "no repressions" school were "liberated into tyrants" who proceeded to oppress their parents and all other adults who have tried to manage them.

Physical Security

Some while ago I wrote an article in this column, saying that good upbringing of the child does not consist in shielding him from frustrations but in seeing that he shall experience those frustrations which are most useful to him for his physical security, emotional security, and usefulness.

As you who have read this column for many years know, I have always emphasized the need of adequate, early, consistent restraints in the child for his best safety, moral growth, likableness and citizenship. (My bulletin "How To Teach Your Meaning of No" may be had by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this paper.)

In the preface to our new book "Homes Build Persons," Mrs. Myers and I say: "This book expresses a revolt against the prevailing philosophy and practice of excessive self-expression." It emphasizes the need of restraints, especially in the child's early years, more than any other volume on child rearing we know about, though it is replete with appeals for more parental love and understanding of the child.

Virtue In Spoils System

doctrines uncritically, without examination, and therefore to overlook fallacies in them which are perfectly obvious to those who survey the matter with some spirit of healthy skepticism.

Actually there is considerable advantage to the public, (which, as the ultimate ruler and the basic payer-of-the-bills, is entitled to prime consideration) in the much-abused spoils system.

Put the idea this way: the prejudices and the loyalties of the public office-holders and staffs make quite as much difference, in the long run, as do laws and policies. Unless the public has some means of changing the personnel on the public payroll, then the people cannot really control their government. Whatever hampers the electorate in making its will effective on public matters is a road-block to popular sovereignty, and therefore a negation to the true spirit of republicanism.

Under certain circumstances, other facts enter the picture which make the restrictions on dismissals and substitutions in public service a still more harmful impediment to good government.

Those circumstances include the situation where public jobholding has swollen to a size which threatens the solvency of the government and the country's national economy. The Federal payroll certainly has reached that stage already, and there are some indications of the same trend in many state and municipal governments.

The highpoint of Federal employment was (and surely not by coincidence) around the time of the Fourth Term campaign of President Roosevelt—1944. In addition to some ten millions or thereabouts of men and women in the military service, there were more than three million civilian employees.

After the war, this tapered down rapidly. In the early stages of his post-war career, President Truman slashed a number of appropriations which automatically whittled down the payroll. Moreover, thousands of individuals felt that their opportunities were greater in private industry, and left government service voluntarily. For a considerable space of time, Uncle Sam's payroll hovered around two million.

But today it is climbing rapidly. Some surveys indicate that more than a thousand employees are being added weekly in just the regular departments, with uncountable others where it is not so conspicuous. The accusations were made a few days ago that the crime investigation activities of the government have put 120,000 persons to work. A recent press statement implied that the price control authorities now plan to hire a vast army of "snoopers."

And so it goes. With another key presidential election coming up next year, it is quite possible that upwards of four million politically sponsored pro-Truman Democrats will be on the Federal payroll by a year from next November.

Now, employment of such size is beyond the capacity of our economy to support, and moreover, the hiring of four million politically-minded individuals is a threat to the integrity of our election system and a denial of the will of the American people.

But how can this problem ever be solved if we are to discard the so-called "spoils system", whereby an incoming party largely wipes the slate clean of its predecessors job-holders, and starts fresh building up a staff of its own?

Blanket dismissals are the only broom by which any government can be given a housecleaning—and the phrase "spoils system" was primarily invented in self-defense by political hangers-on who didn't want to suffer dismissal from their sinecures!

Criminal-Controlled Firm Gets A "Deal"

Chairman William M. Boyle or his assistants," referring to the head of the Democratic committee.

"Dunham cooperated freely with these people. He even undertook to place some of them in important jobs."

On July 12, 1950, Boyle's office made an appointment with RFC for Leo B. Parker, Kansas City attorney, representing the Starratt Television Corporation, owned principally by one Jacob Freidus and his wife.

After negotiating with Parker, RFC agreed to sell to Starratt Television the facilities of the Aircor Manufacturing Corp., of Kansas City, which RFC had acquired by foreclosure on a defaulted loan.

"For some unexplained reason," the investigating committee reported, "RFC omitted to obtain a Dun & Bradstreet report regarding Starratt Television Corp. and its principals."

"If it had done so, it would have learned that Freidus and his father-in-law, Sam Aaron, were under indictment for evasion of income taxes amounting to $218,000."

"This information came to the subcommittee on September 25, 1950, the day before the deal was to be closed in Kansas City. It was communicated to RFC immediately, and RFC undertook to postpone the closing of the deal."

"The RFC investigators division looked into the matter and found not only that there was income tax evasion, but that certain other principals in Starratt Television corporation had criminal records."

"The RFC investigators found further that there was good reason to believe the corporation and its principals had made misrepresentations to induce RFC to award the sale to them."

"Notwithstanding the probability of misrepresentations, RFC did not take action against the purchaser under those sections of the RFC act to Central Iron & Steel was authorized, the substitute examiner, Hubert Steele, quit RFC and went to work for Rosenbaum's law firm at $15,000 a year.

On the day he reported for duty, the subcommittee says, Steele received a payment of $5,000. Rosenbaum explained that it was an "advance" on Steele's salary for four months.

The committee says that the principal advocate for the Central Steel & Iron loan was Joseph E. Casey, working with his brother-in-law, Robert W. Dudley, then a member of Rosenbaum's law firm.

"Both made their principal contacts in the RFC with Willett," says the committee.

A committee chart shows that Casey, Dudley, and Rosenbaum's firm each pay a third of Steele's salary as "consultant on RFC loans."

Other testimony before the committee described an attempted "typical Washington fix" in connection with RFC.

The witness, Roy Freuhauf, president of a trailer company, was a creditor of the Lustron corporation, which had borrowed $37.5 million from RFC, then went broke.

Freuhauf testified that Rosenbaum offered — for a fee of $100,000 — to get RFC approval of a plan to reorganize Lustron to safeguard Freuhauf's interests.

Freuhauf said his own counsel advised against accepting the proposition, terming it a "typical Washington fix," and so Freuhauf did not go into it.

"The Freuhauf plans for Lustron reorganization met with failure," comments the Senate committee.

to Central Iron & Steel Company, granted by RFC over the objections of all examiners and reviewers with the single exception of one substitute examiner, Hubert B. Steele.

The company is one of a group which are clients of the law firm of Joseph Rosenbaum, named by the investigators as a central figure in the alleged influence ring surrounding RFC.

The committee charges that RFC director William E. Willett brought about the substitution of examiners in order to avoid an "automatic decline" of the loan applications of an allied company.

The committee state flatly that Willett knew of the earlier unsuccessful applications.

one year. This official will have the power to enter any building at the time of its construction, or following its finish to inspect said building to see that it complies with the provisions of the ordinance.

The building official will not be held liable for any damage done while he is performing his duties, and will have the right to grant or reject building permits as according to his stated powers. Applications for building permits may be made in writing on specified forms, and will be examined by the building official, who must allow or deny them within fifteen days. At any time, while a building is under construction, the building official will have the right to issue stop work orders, if some provision of the building code has been violated.

When a building permit has been issued, work must get underway within six months, and should work be halted on a project for a period of 60 days or longer, the permit will be null and void. Each application for a building permit must be accompanied with two complete sets of plans of the project. A resident of Bristol Township in the future will need a building permit before he can build, dig a new cesspool, make an addition to a present dwelling, renovate or a repair in any way, or build a garage or temporary building. Special permits will be granted, however, for temporary buildings.

Fees on the building permits will range from $1 on work costing less than $101 to fifteen dollars on work costing more than $9000 but less than $10,000. Over $10,000, a dollar will be added on the fee for each additional $1000 of estimated cost. A bond of $500 will have to be posted to restitution of township property such as roads, should these be destroyed during the course of construction.

Under the new ordinance, buildings in the township will fall into various classifications. The first of these, high hazard buildings, will include storage buildings or manufacturing plants where highly combustible or explosive goods are handled or made. The second, storage buildings, classified as being moderately hazardous, will include buildings where rags, paper, cardboard products and the like are stored. The third classification is that of low hazard storage places such as glass and metals. The next classification, mercantile, shall include all buildings where goods are displayed for sale. The industrial classification will of course take in those places where the occupants are engaged in manufacturing, assembling, or fabricating. The business classification shall include those buildings where business is transacted, be it professional services such as a doctor or lawyer, or a bank and regular business office.

The final three classifications of buildings include institutional, taking in schools, churches, and hospitals; residential, including homes and dwellings, and miscellaneous, a catch all classification which will include all types not otherwise classified.

In strong passages, the new ordinance also provides exacting specifications for the building of new buildings, and clearly defines the types of buildings covered by the code according to construction. It encompasses all possible different types of construction, and definitely restricts types of dwelling such as single, double, and multiple homes to be built and maintained, unless they are constructed along the specifications set forth in the code. This covers, mainly, special construction considerations to provide for adequate fire protection. As an example, under the new code garages attached to dwellings must have metal and lath roofs.

House trailers, long a bane of rural districts, come in for special consideration under the newly adopted ordinance. If they are lived in more than 30 days, they will be classed as single unit dwellings, and must conform with all the regulations set forth for permanent homes in the building code. Then they must fall into one of the set construction types. This applies only to newly placed trailer homes, and not those already in use.

Definite fire zones are to be established according to the township map, and special restrictions will be placed on garages built close to dwellings in the zones, and the type of construction will be clearly defined in these zones, so as to insure the maximum fire protection. From now on in the township all buildings, except single dwellings, requiring them according to law, must be equipped with fire towers and escapes.

Under the new code, cesspools may not be placed within 75 feet of a well, within 25 feet of a building, nor within ten feet of a property line. This will undoubtedly work a hardship on persons finding themselves with big houses and small lots, but here again the discretionary powers of the building official will be called into being.

Plumbing, heating, and electrical wiring will also require special building permits, the fees for these to be based on the cost of the contract.

Persons found guilty of violating the building code will be liable to a fine of fifty dollars or five days in the county jail at Doylestown, for each offense.

Residents, will, however, have the right of appeal to the township commissioners, should they feel they were unjustly treated by the building official. This appeal must be made in writing, within ten days following the official's decision.

The new building code, which took one hour and twenty-five minutes to read to the gathering of citizens and taxpayers, was passed immediately, despite one minor protest from a member of the public.

During the month of April, Bristol Township police collected $384 in fines, $49 of which went to the state. Violations were as follows: Speeding, 10; reckless driving, 2; overweight trucks, 4; no inspection, no operator's license, and passing red lights, 1 each; three stolen cars were recovered by the police, nine attempted robberies were investigated, and eleven motor accidents were recorded. The police car covered 2700 miles during the month.

Special Legislative Assistance Sought By Bucks School Districts educating the pupil from the new homes of $280.

Reports submitted to the school directors showed on the average that the recent land sales revealed that the prices paid were from 20 to 30 times the real estate assessment.

One option on a farm, if exercised, will bring a price which is 150 times the real estate assessment.

It is known that four Lower Bucks County communities are planning to construct new sewers or add to present facilities, further adding to the local tax burden.

School tax rates of over 40 mills were predicted in Lower Bucks County within the next two years unless real estate standards are raised. The school boards in Lower Bucks County have had four projects before the state school Building Authority since April 1950 and no action has been taken by that authority on those projects, as no funds are available.

One report pointed out that 20 school buildings housing over 3500 pupils were erected prior to 1900 with five century old structures in use since the pre-civil war era. It listed three temporary buildings erected during the first World War. These buildings are now in use 30 years longer than the period for which they were originally planned.

The meeting was presided over by Charles H. Boehm, Representative from the following school boards were present:

Bensalem, Bristol Borough, Bristol Township, Langhorne, Langhorne Manor, Lower Southampton, Upper Southampton, Warminster, Middletown, Pennell, Hulmeville, Fallstown, Lower Makefield, Yardley, Upper Makefield, and Morrisville.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Perpete and daughters, Susan Rae and Marjorie, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Stahl and daughter Barbara Lee Ocean Grove, N. J. In honor of Susan Rae's 5th birthday, a party was arranged by Mrs. Stahl.

Favors were little baskets of candy. The guests enjoyed listening to selections played by Mr. Stahl on his electric organ. Later the group journeyed to Ashbury Park, N. J., where they enjoyed the amusements. Susan Rae received gifts.

days over the effect hundreds and hundreds of new homes will have on their own land as property owners.

However, because the property owners of these unzoned townships are unable to reach an understanding, no restrictions have been provided.

To secure zoning in a township, the supervisors appoint a zoning commission to prepare a code. Public hearings are then held to examine the code and if satisfactory can be passed by the supervisors and go into effect.

Those townships not yet zoned are: Bedminster, Bensalem, Bridgeton, Bristol, Buckingham, Doylestown, Durham, East Rockhill, Falls, Haycock, Hilltown, Milford, New Britain, Nockamixon, Plumstead, Richland, Springfield, Tinicum, Upper Makefield, Upper Southampton, Warrington, West Rockhill and Wrightstown.

Those boroughs not yet zoned are: Bristol, Dublin, Hulmeville, New Britain, Richlandtown, Ringoesville, Telford, Trumbauersville, Tullytown.

Those townships which are zoned are: Chalfont, Doylestown, Ivyland, Langhorne, Langhorne Manor, Morrisville, New Hope, Newtown, Perkasie, Quakertown, Sellersville, Silverdale and Yardley.

The committee of the Planning Commission, consisting of A. Walter Fretz, Attorney J. Leslie Kilkenny and Thomas B. Stockham, 3rd, are studying about 20 applications for the position of planning engineer.

Members of the commission who were present at the meeting on Tuesday afternoon were Thomas R. Lewis, John L. Stover, William S. Erwin and Charles M. Meredith, President of Bucks County Commissioners Simon K. Moyer presided, and Commissioner Joseph Halliwell was also present.

PENNSBURG WINS OVER BRISTOL HIGH BY SCORE OF 9 TO 5

Four runs in the final frame gave Pennsburg High a 9-5 triumph over Bristol High yesterday afternoon on Memorial Park field. The win enabled the Falcons to take second place in the Lower Bucks County circuit.

The winning tallies were made on walks to Briggs and Powell, Ray Bray getting on via an error and singles by Brazier and Bill Bray. The game started out to be a hurling match between Williams and Bill Struble but ended in a slugfest. Pennsburg had a 1-0 lead until the last half of the fourth when Bristol went ahead, 2-1. Going into the last frame, the score was knotted at 5-5.

Ercle Petrizzi was the batting star of the game, getting a double and three singles in four times at bat. The Warriors had 10 hits in the fray with Pennsburg getting 11. Briggs, Miller, and Bill Bray had two each for the 1950 champions.

BENSALEM WINS 4TH GAME IN ROW

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, May 2—Bensalem Township won its 4th straight game of the Lower Bucks County League yesterday afternoon as it downed the Council Rock High nine, 5-2, on Hansell's field.

It was the sixth win of the season for the Owls who have also beaten Lower Moreland and Delhaas. Of the six victories, including yesterday's five have been credited to the fire-ball hurler, Bob Whitfield. Whitfield set down Council Rock with seven hits and would have escaped with a shutout but for a long triple from the bat of Russ Morris in the fifth inning. The three-bagger helped to account for the pair of Council Rock runs. Whitfield struck out nine and walked four.

Bensalem got off to a fine start by crossing the plate three times in the initial inning. With one down, Harry Robinson started the ball rolling with a single. Al Bader also hit safely and when Charlie Perkins let the ball get away from him, Robinson scored. Joe Mikalaitis hit a single to score Bader. Walt Smith's two-base knock counted Mikalaitis.

Al Bader continued his hitting streak for the Owls, getting three for three. In the last four games, Bader has hit safely eight times in 12 trips to the plate.

LITZ STAR OF GAME

CROYDON, May 2—Joe Litz was the star of the game here yesterday as Croydon beat Delhaas in a Township Elementary League game. The final score was 13-8. Litz had a home run and a pair of singles. He scored three runs and drove in six. His circuit clout in the third came with Jack Sullivan, Roy Johnson and Lane Polk on base. Croydon had 15 hits in the tilt, with Delhaas getting eight. Sullivan was the winning pitcher, with the defeat going to Smith.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE TO MEET

There will be a meeting of the Bristol Softball League tonight at seven o'clock in the Diamond Sporting Goods store, Mill street. All managers are requested to attend. Umpires seeking to work in the circuit this season are requested to hand their application to any league official or team manager.

BRISTOL GIRLS OPEN SEASON WITH VICTORY

NEWTOWN, May 2—The Bristol High girls opened their 1950 Lower Bucks Softball League season yesterday with a rousing 8-3 win over Council Rock.

Catch Barbara Yerkes' lassies had ten hits in the fracas with Nancy Almond getting four for four. Council Rock was held to three hits. Both teams played poor ball afield, a total of 18 errors being made.

Joan Meyers did the hurling for the Bristol girls and had nine strikeouts to her credit. She walked four. The first two runs made off Meyers were unearned in the first inning.

Last week, Council Rock rolled up a 46-14 score over Southampton.
